Academic Challenges

This section is optional and can help explain a low grade, a drop in grade, or any other issue relating to your academic history.

Major

Choosing a second-choice major will ensure you're considered for all avenues of admission. If you only chose one major, you'll be reviewed for that major.

- Choose one major if you are very firm on your major and will only go to a school that admits you to that program.
- If you select a second-choice major, you'll be reviewed for your first choice. If you aren't admissible, you'll be considered for your second choice. If you aren't admissible to either major, you'll be considered for all avenues of admission including the Division of General Studies.
- If you select a specific major as your second choice, you must write a second essay about your interest in that program. If you select the Division of General Studies as your second choice, you don't have to write a second essay.
- If you're admitted to an alternate major, you'll still be considered wait listed for your first-choice major if space opens up later.

Essay

Explain your interest in the major you selected and describe how you have recently explored or developed this interest inside and/or outside the classroom. You may also explain how this major relates to your future career goals. If you're applying to the Division of General Studies, explain your academic interests and strengths or your future career goals. You may include any majors or areas of study you're currently considering. Limit your response to 300 to 400 words.

If you select a second-choice major other than the Division of General Studies on your application, write a second essay explaining your interest in this major, too. Again, limit your response to 300 to 400 words.
